

Index

Foreword by Maria Falcone p. 9

1.

European Union and criminal challenges

1.1. Some useful premises » 15

1.2. Attack on Europe in 2015 » 18

1.3. An Atlas of European crimes » 22

1.4. Crime and its global vocation: an unprecedented growth ... » 25

1.5. An European “radiography” of organized crime » 30

1.5. International cooperation and national languages » 38

1.6. The role of European Agencies: not only Europol but also Eurojust » 42

1.7. Where is the European Union going: what are the perspectives for the safety of citizens? » 46

2.

The challenge of international terrorism: an unprecedented attack on the EU

2.1. The worst year for Europe: 2015 and the threat of foreign fighters » 51

2.2. The threat spread from France to other European countries .. » 55

2.3. The evolution: from Al Qaeda to Isis, all the way to the birth of individual terrorism » 57

2.4. Islamic Terrorism and the web » 62

2.5. Could the 2015 attacks be foreseen? » 64

2.6. The cases of the Kouachi brothers and Amedy Coulibaly ... » 65

2.7. The attacks on November 13th, 2015: a project that was conceived and organized abroad » 67

2.8. The flaws in the European information system » 69

2.9. The new EU strategy after 2015: cooperation is the keyword » 72

| | | |
|---|----|----|
| 2.10. The role of Eurojust and the institution of the European Counter-Terrorism Register | p. | 75 |
| 2.11. The latest attacks of 2020: the threat is still to be defeated .. | » | 81 |
| 2.12. What to do to be safer? | » | 84 |
| 2.13. The 2020 counter-terrorism Agenda | » | 89 |

3.

Mafia in Europe

| | | |
|--|---|-----|
| 3.1. The mafia “magma”: definitions and evolutions of the phenomenon | » | 95 |
| 3.2. Drugs: endless wealth for the mafias | » | 100 |
| 3.3. The evolution of the business model of mafias | » | 105 |
| 3.4. Mafias in Europe and the reasons for their expansion | » | 109 |
| 3.5. National and European laws: still many gaps to fill | » | 115 |
| 3.6. A virtuous example: Pollino Operation | » | 121 |
| 3.7. Coordination can be winning, as long as... .. | » | 123 |
| 3.8. Something is moving... .. | » | 125 |

4.

The third-millennium slavery in the heart of Europe

| | | |
|--|---|-----|
| 4.1. Smuggling and Trafficking: a distinction to better understand the tragedy | » | 129 |
| 4.2. Human trafficking in the heart of Europe: shame is among us .. | » | 134 |
| 4.3. Which responses of the European Union? Are law enforcement measures enough? | » | 138 |
| 4.4. Migration crisis and the EU: the flaws of the system and the data of the crisis | » | 143 |
| 4.5. The fight against migrant smuggling: the efforts of the European Agencies | » | 146 |
| 4.6. Can traffickers be defeated? The example of the ‘Glaucio operations’ | » | 150 |
| 4.7. The urgent need to make new choices: Europe can no longer wait | » | 154 |
| 4.8. The last call for the EU: a new Pact on Migration and Asylum .. | » | 160 |

5.

The Final Frontier:
crime travels on the web

5.1. The phenomenon: lots of victims, but who is responsible? . . . p. 166

5.2. Crime 2.0: what are the challenges and can we defend ourselves? » 172

5.3. Respect for human rights is not a less important matter » 177

5.4. The EU response and its strategies » 181

5.5. Europol’s activity » 185

5.6. The role of Eurojust and the creation of virtuous models » 188

5.7. The persistent issues » 190

5.8. What should we do to improve our justice systems and citizen protection? » 193

6.

Covid-19: new opportunities for the EU or for criminals?

6.1. The Pandemic: an opportunity to relaunch the European project? » 199

6.2. Covid 19: criminals do not go into quarantine. Trends in progress » 202

6.3. Counterfeiting medical products and Covid-19 vaccination » 204

6.4. Cybercrime and Fraud schemes » 207

6.5. Increased risk of infiltration of OCGs and mafia types criminal groups in legitimate companies » 211

6.6. Drug trafficking: the business continues » 215

6.7. Migrant smuggling and human trafficking: new handy profits » 217

7.

How to get out of the woods:
Ideas for a new EU
Area of Freedom Security and Justice

7.1. We have been through a tough crisis » 223

7.2. Europe is reacting: the reasons to relaunch the path » 227

| | | |
|---|----|---|
| Afterword Redirecting the action at the European level by Franco Roberti | p. | 233 |
| Thanks | » | 243 |
| Post-edition updates | |  |